The Jeffery Cemetery contains sixteen identified burials marked with carved gravestones. Fifteen of the stones are tablet-style white marble ranging from one to four feet in height. The tablet-style is a form that can be traced back to ancient funerary stele and is the most universal form used to mark the head of the interred. All of the tablet stones use either the simple single curved arch or the flat top. The remaining carved stone is the newest, dating from 1908. It is of gray granite cut in the block style. Most of the stones are elaborately carved and feature popular funerary imagery such as clasped hands, hands pointing to heaven, an open book (bible), drapery, an altar, a lamb lying on an altar, a banner, flowers (roses), and elaborate scroll work. Jehoiada Jeffery, from whom the cemetery derives its importance, has a relatively simple headstone featuring a hand holding a banner pointing toward heaven symbolizing triumph and directing the viewer's eye heavenward toward spiritual matters. All of the carved stones have associated footstones, some with rounded tops, others with flat tops, and all bearing the initials of the deceased. The remaining ten to twenty burials are either marked with uncarved native fieldstone or identifiable only by depressions in the ground. The placement of the burials in the cemetery follows traditional customs with the feet facing east.

The cemetery has no enclosures or fencing separating it from the surrounding acreage. Natural boundaries include a deep ravine on the east and north sides of the site and a flat river bottom field on the south and west sides; the cemetery nestling on a small rise between these natural features. There are no original historic designed landscape features existing at the Jeffery Cemetery, and probably never were. However, numerous large trees, including oak, ash, and cottonwood shade the site. In spring native trillium, mayapple, and jack-in-the-pulpit cover the ground.

Following is a list of individuals known to be buried in the Jeffery Cemetery: Jehoiada Jeffery, born 8/10/1790, died 8/19/1846; Mary Weir (or Ware) Jeffery, wife of Jehoiada, born 10/25/1793, died 11/7/1874; Jane Jeffery, daughter of Jehoiada and Mary, born 2/8/1814, died 8/20/1816 (the first known burial in IZARD County); Nancy Jeffery, daughter of Jehoiada and Mary, born 10/17/1819, died 10/01/1821; Peggy Jeffery, daughter of Jehoiada and Mary, born 3/25/1833, died 9/01/1834; Beniah Jeffery, son of Jehoiada and Mary, born 12/12/1830, died 1/03/1846; Augustus Curran Jeffery, son of Jehoiada and Mary, born 3/04/1824, died 2/1880; Daniel Mason Jeffery, Jr., son of Jehoiada and Mary, born 4/02/1822, died 4/01/1888; Elizabeth Harris Jeffery, wife of Augustus Curran Jeffery, born 3/20/1829, died 3/14/1868; Kate Jeffery, daughter of Augustus Curran Jeffery, born 7/07/1860, died 9/05/1876; Daniel Jeffery, brother to Jehoiada, born 1797, died 9/1862; Mary Bowcock Jeffery, wife of Daniel, born 1802, died 2/23/1863; Elizabeth Carter Jeffery, wife of Elijah, Jehoiada and Mary's son, born 8/10/1813, died 8/27/1836; Nancy Lawrence

Summary

The Jeffery Cemetery is the most significant remaining site associated with early Arkansas pioneer, Jehoiada Jeffery, who was the first permanent settler in present day Izard County in north central Arkansas. As such, the Jeffery Cemetery is being nominated to the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion B, Criterion Consideration C for its association with Jehoiada Jeffery.

Elaboration

Jehoiada Jeffery is the original and central figure in this nomination, arriving in 1815 as the first pioneer to permanently settle present day Izard County. Jehoiada was twenty-six years old when he, his wife Mary Weir (or Ware) of Virginia, his daughter, Jane and sons, Elijah and Miles arrived on the banks of the White River in the wilderness of north central Arkansas. Coming fresh from the War of 1812 where he served under Andrew Jackson, Captain Peter Craig and Captain John Shaw; fighting in the Battle of Horseshoe Bend and New Orleans, Jehoiada received with his discharge the right to one hundred sixty acres of land west of the Mississippi.

Returning to his home in southern Illinois, Jehoiada collected his young family and trekked across the wilderness from Illinois to north central Arkansas, settling on the banks of the White River in an area known as Pine Bayou. There he built a two-story log home and cleared land for farming, creating with his farmstead the first permanent settlement between Batesville and the Missouri State line. In 1816, Jehoiada and Mary's young daughter, Jane, died at two-and-one-half years of age and was the first to be buried in what was to become the Jeffery Cemetery.

Soon after Jehoiada and his family became established in the area, other settlers began arriving, including his father James Jeffery and brothers Daniel and Jesse. As settlement in the area grew, Pine Bayou became a small, established community which soon had its name changed to Mount Olive, after the mountain rising on the eastside of the town.

The Jeffery farm became known for miles around as a haven for strangers traveling through the area. Two famous visitors known to have enjoyed the hospitality of Jehoiada and Mary Jeffery were Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, who stayed with the family during part of his journey through the Ozarks, and Sam Houston, who visited on his way through to Texas.

Jehoiada prospered over the years, becoming a wealthy, respected farmer raising cattle, hogs, wheat and corn that he shipped by flat boat to market in Memphis and New Orleans. He served as a representative to the Territorial Legislature in Little Rock from 1824-1829. During his legislative service, Jehoiada introduced bills that created Izard County and Fulton County. Following the establishment of the county seat of Izard County at Mount Olive in 1830, Jehoiada served as county judge from 1833-1838. He also served as Justice of the Peace for twenty-five years. In addition, he worked as a surveyor laying out roadways in Fulton, Izard, and Lawrence Counties; surveying the roads for the town of Batesville in Independence County and assisting in the survey and planning of the route of the old military road through Arkansas.

Jehoiada and his wife, Mary, ultimately had twelve children, some dying in youth, and others living long, respected lives. One son, Augustus Curran Jeffery (A. C. Jeffery Farmstead, NR listed 8/11/94) followed in his father's footsteps and served as County Judge for four years and County Clerk for two. Jehoiada's father, James, also served as Judge and a pillar of the county. His brother, Daniel, served as county sheriff in 1836 and a member of the state legislature in 1846.

Jehoiada Jeffery died at his home in Mount Olive, Arkansas on August 19, 1846, at fifty-six years of age, and was laid to rest in the Jeffery emetry alongside his father, one son, three daughters, and one daughter-in-law. He was a respected farmer, politician, pioneer, and individual. Because of his importance to the settlement, creation, and development of Izard County, the Jeffery Cemetery—the most significant remaining site associated with Jehoiada Jeffery—is being nominated to the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion B, Criterion Consideration C.
